In Memoriam:

In memory of our dear son and brother, Richard Henderson Gowin, who departed this life four years ago, July 9, 1947.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is still.
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

God knows how much we miss him,
Never shall his memory fade;
Loving thoughts shall ever wander
To the spot where he is laid.

The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved
From memory pass away.

Though our hearts may break with sorrow
By the grief so hard to bear,
We shall meet him some bright morning,
In the upper garden there.

—Sadly missed by Mother, Dad, Brothers and Sisters.

In Memoriam:

IN—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Holmsley Inge, who left us one year ago today, July 7, 1950.

Gone from us, but leaving fond memories,
Death can never take away;
Memories that will always linger,
While on earth we stay.

The flowers we place upon your grave,
May wither and decay;
But the love we have for you, dear Holmsey,
Will never fade away.

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
Our eyes shed many a tear.
God only knows how we miss you,
At the end of one long year.

Your kind and loving ways,
Were loved by everyone so,
We know we will see you some sweet day,
Upon the shining shore.

—Sadly missed by wife, Daughters and Son.

In Memoriam:

GOWIN: In memory of our dear brother and uncle, Pomp Julian Gowin, who departed his life away 9 years ago, June 30, 1942.

What would we give to clasp your hand,
Your precious face to see;
To hear hear your voice and see your smile,
What a joy that would be.

His life was true and faithful,
His heart was filled with love;
Trusting in Jesus for his Saviour,
Till he joined Him above.

—Sadly missed by Sister, Mrs. Wesley Stanley and Children.

Painless Childbirth

An improvement of the nerve block technique in painless childbirth—which involves only one site of injection instead of the former two or four—is described in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Dr. Orlen J. Johnson of Bay City, Michigan, reports that he has used the new technique on 161 women, of whom 92 were becoming mothers for the first time. With skilled injection, he explained, the patient complains of no discomfort. He added that no reactions from the procaine, a local anesthetic, or complications have been encountered and that there has been no greater discomfort or delay in the healing of surgical incisions.

Magistrates Continue Life Of England's Lilliput Town

As a Lilliput town of hip-high houses and finger-size inhabitants, the County Council planners of Buckinghamshire, England, have met a big detour sign.

The model village and Bekonscot, set up at Beaconsfield about two decades ago, will carry on, the Beaconsfield magistrates have ruled, in denying a recent Council demand for its closure as a detriment to the local residential area.

The decision will interest thousands of visitors who have flocked to this spot from all over the world. It is a reminder that the unique miniature of England's architecture and way of life has survived both wartime devastation and postwar austerity.

Tiny Bekonscot itself is a graphic example of planning a community to fit its environment. Covering only two acres of the Callingham estate, it spreads over a Lilliput landscape of hill and dale, complete with airport, docks, and an elaborate electrically run railway system.

Buildings, people, and animals have been reproduced exactly to scale—an inch to a foot. The result is the illusion of reality so strong that a real bird alighting in a field of miniature farm lands and grazing cattle seems like a gigant creature from the Brobdingnag land of "Gulliver's Travels."

Reversible Bifocals Soon Available to Spec Wearers

A new type of eye glasses which allows the bifocal portion to be moved out of the way when not needed is described by Dr. David B. Rolf of Cleveland in the Archives of Ophthalmology and issued by the American Medical Association.

According to Dr. Rolf, the lenses of the glasses may be rotated, or turned upside down, by a unique method of attachment, so that the bifocal part is on top instead of in the bottom. In his opinion the reversible lens arrangement has many advantages. He said:

"Its flexibility will save many patients an extra pair of glasses. It offers a possible solution to the long-standing problem of the patient who cannot accustom himself to walking while wearing bifocals in their usual position. It also permits the bifocal segment to be placed upward and out of the way during all or part of his walking activities. It would also seem applicable for patients engaged in occupations with unusual visual demands. Patients in these categories include barbers, switchboard operators, painters and paper hangers, as well as most people employed in the building trades, where sure footing is a necessity."

Dr. Rolf believes that the mechanics of changing the position of the lenses are sufficiently simple so that most persons are able to master them easily. He said there are no limitations regarding size, shape or type of bifocals or trifocals that can be used and the technic of prescribing and fitting these lenses is not difficult.

Plastics Now Play Important Dual Role On Peace, War Front

Today plastics are playing a dual role, at home and in the accelerated military program.

Once again plastics have gone to our defense, but they are no longer regarded as a substitute for other materials as they were in World War II, according to The Society of the Plastics Industry.

During the past six years, peacetime applications have been developed from wartime uses, and today plastics are a rapidly expanding billion-dollar industry, with about thirty different kinds of plastics.

Familiar to every housewife are the various plastics concentrated in the kitchen—the colorful tableware, the mats, tablecloths, mixing bowls, non-breakable boxes and flexible ice-cube trays.

Like Cinderella, plastics have also come out of the kitchen and entered all parts of the home.

Replacing the horsehair upholstery of the Victorian era are the smooth-surfaced fabrics which are designed attractively to harmonize with modern furniture.

Lumite woven saran is a good example of the versatility of newer plastics, for the same fiber which is woven into colorful fabrics is also made into window screens. And have the same easy-to-clean, durable features.

Plastics are extremely versatile. Some are tough, and durable, while others are soft and pliable. They run the gamut from hard-wearing floor tiles to inflatable toys. Plastics include a whole group of widely differing materials, just as metals do. Not all plastics have the same attributes. Some are resistant to heat, some to alcohol and acids, some to soil and some to the sun.

And because of this versatility, the plastics which are familiar in the home are also being used in defense. Again the military applications vary from use in radar insulation and one-piece modeled boats, to parts for jet fighters and shells.

World's Leading Spokesmen Variety of Speaking Talent

A study of the speaking qualities of the world's leading spokesmen can be helpful to would-be orators, according to Dr. Robert T. Oliver, professor and head of the department of speech at the Pennsylvania State College.

Dr. Oliver characterizes the speech of some of our leaders as follows:

Prime Minister Clement Atlee: "flat and dull, even when he is speaking incontrovertible truth."

Joseph Stalin: "bland as a boy caught with his hand in the cookie jar, swearing he really is in the parlor studying his Sunday School lesson."

Winston Churchill: "petulant, tired, sometimes over-eager, but still the grandest voice speaking for freedom."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower: "disarmingly simple—a Kansas farm boy with a college education."

Carlos Romulo of the Philippines: "cocky as a bantam rooster, but with the bite of a bull dog."

News Around Town

By Mrs. Calvin Robinson

A laugh for this week—I hope: Mrs. Newlywed: "What's wrong with this cake, my dear? It tastes gritty."

Mrs. Newlywed: "Don't be silly, darling! The recipe calls for three whole eggs and I guess maybe I did get the shells beaten up fine enough." (From: Va. Forests).

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Connor and family have returned from a three week vacation. They visited Pensacola, Florida and Texas and Mexico.

Mrs. A. F. Drinkard will celebrate her 92nd birthday on Sunday July 8 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Leonard Martin, at 2:00 P. M. Friends and relatives are invited to attend. Mrs. Drinkard, may I be one of the first to say, "Happy Birthday." Hope Father Darkfield and I can get by for the celebration. Why not all of join in sending this lady a shower of birthday cards! Her address: Mrs. A. F. Drinkard, RFD, Concord, Va.

Some of the ladies from the Virginia Novelty Company tell me they will motor to Bedford Friday for a picnic. They worked July 4th. So I—and I wouldn't mind a picnic myself. I do hope they have a nice day and good weather. While I am on the subject, I drove down to Holiday Lake last Sunday afternoon. The beach looks fine, with the sand. I could not resist taking off my shoes and walking on the sand and also going wading! Only thing about it was, had my grandnephew, Ken Coleman along, and he splashed water all about, and got soaked.

Boy be a little late in reporting some of the news, but as the saying goes better late than never. Mr. Ed Ramsey, who had been working at the drug store, is now with Poe Hardware Co. Mr. Eddie Wooldridge who had been with Poe Hardware, is now with the National Park Service. He and his family are living at the Old Court House in the residence formerly occupied by the E. I. Scott family.

It is good to see Mr. J. W. Cawthon walking around town again. Mr. Cawthon remained in the Virginia Baptist Hospital for four weeks recovering from an operation. "Cousin Jimmy" appears to be getting along fine now.

Miss Anne Elizabeth Taylor, of Gladstone, left Sunday for Swarthmore, Pa., where she will be joined by three of her classmates at Mary Washington College, where they received degrees in June, for an extended tour of the West Coast. They expect to return to their homes by mid-August.

Miss Penny Abbitt and Miss Emily Burk are spending this week at Camp Ruthers.

Frank Leigh Burke, Bill Caldwell, Tommy Holland and Kenneth Marshall are at Camp Bibee.

Mrs. O. L. Davidson sent to our office this week a triple cucumber grown in her garden. Good one, too!

Mrs. C. G. O'Brien and two daughters, Kitty Lou and Susan Nell, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schlenkerman for a three week tour of Canada.

The following Intermediate C. A.'s from Liberty Baptist Church will leave in the morning for The Cedars, Marion, Va., to spend a week— Misses Anne Abbitt, Ottie Conner, Alice Ashworth, Frances Ramsey, Betty Mitchell, Anne Evans, Neta Thomas, Mary Watt Stanley, Natta Sears, Marie Millner, and Jackie Forrester. Miss Yoyce Wingfield, counsellor, will accompany the group.

What do you know— I have, at long last, had a garden ripe tomato. Grown in the garden of Mrs. T. R. Richardson. Mrs. Richardson tells me she has had tomatoes for several weeks. There is a great difference in tomatoes grown in the garden and those shipped in. Sometimes, especially at this season, I wish I had a garden and did not have to depend on generous neighbors.

In last week's column, I failed to mention that Bobby Jamerson accompanied the group on a trip to Niagara Falls.

Midshipman Lawrence H. Watson, 3-C, of U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Watson, of Rosebower.

Paul Sarver was in our office this morning. Delighted to see him back from the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Blanks and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Guill will return this week-end from a trip to Canada.

A Time Saver

For the farmer looking for machinery that is a time saver in this period of labor shortages and need of greater production, the Harroplow makes it possible to plow and disc in one operation. It was first developed in the west to permit better seed bed preparation at lower cost and at greater speed.

Farmers Added to List Of Critical Occupations

Farm operators and assistants have been added to the list of critical occupations by the labor department. Secretary Brannon points out that the list of critical occupations is used as a guide in the selection of manpower for armed services. This addition will aid selective service in considering cases of key farm workers needed to produce record agricultural supplies for the nation's defense.

Compass Points

Except in the Arctic and Antarctic regions, the compass needle points approximately the same in both northern and southern latitudes. The needle is actually a small magnet, pivoted so that it can move freely around its center. One end points toward the north magnetic pole of the Earth, which is located on the Boothia Peninsula north of Canada. The other end points toward the south magnetic pole, in South Victoria Land, which is directly south of the eastern coast of Australia.

Korean Network

The "Han River Network" is far from being the largest radio network in the world but it has done much to bolster the morale of B and C Batteries, 58th Field Artillery, of the United States Army's 3rd Infantry Division now in action in Korea. Recently, Captain Horace F. Potts of Killeen, Texas, then commanding B Battery, decided to do something about the lack of entertainment in the combat zone. Captain Potts took a radio that had been issued by Division Special Services, and rigged a telephone in such a manner as to pick up the news and music being broadcast. The telephone line went to the Battery switchboard, and from there the music was put on telephone lines to gun crews and outposts. At this juncture, PFC Arthur Reggie of Pasadena, California, working on the battalion Fire Direction Center switchboard, increased the volume and the music spread to the men standing in the plotting room. C Battery joined the network and, as a result, the one radio in B Battery was furnishing entertainment through more than 25 outlets. If the lines are needed for a fire mission, the Armed Forces Radio Service yields to the flick of a switch and the crews swing into action.
